What is End-to-End Testing?

End-to-end testing is a technique used to test whether the flow of an application right from start to finish is behaving as expected. The purpose of performing end-to-end testing is to identify system dependencies and to ensure that the data integrity is maintained between various system components and systems.

The entire application is tested for critical functionalities such as communicating with the other systems, interfaces, database, network, and other applications.